Spring/Trimester 3 2025 - Subject and Lecturer Evaluations

Subject Evaluation Report CHEM325 Bioinformatics: Genome, Genes and Biomolecules Spring

Created Tuesday, December 9, 2025

Subject Enrolments: 73
Responses Received: 11
Response Rate: 15.07 %

Report Comments

This report combines subject evaluation results for all instances where a subject is taught across multiple campuses or modes in a single session.

The report provides:

- SEBS response rate and basic respondent demographics
- Overall evaluation ratings and ratings for each question
- Comparisons with your school for the current session
- Free-text comments – providing valuable information on aspects important to students and suggestions for improvements.

If you have any questions about this report, contact uow-evaluations@uow.edu.au.

Interpreting the data

- Subject Instance Reports are generated only when six or more students complete the survey. However, the results for subjects with fewer than six respondents are included in the aggregate reports.
- Response rates of less than 10% should be interpreted with caution.
- A numeric value is assigned to each response. These are used to calculate the average (mean) for each question. Values assigned are:
  - Strongly Agree (6)
  - Agree (5)
  - Mildly Agree (4)
  - Mildly Disagree (3)
  - Disagree (2)
  - Strongly Disagree (1)
  - Unable to Judge (not counted)
- An overall subject mean is calculated on the 10 core questions only - Any additional questions included in the survey are not counted towards the mean.
- Mean scores can hide extremes in responses, as such, you are encouraged to also utilise response distribution and percentage agreeable metrics.

About the SEBS Survey

The SEBS survey has been designed as a tool to assist Subject Coordinators to evaluate their subject(s) in order to assess their impact on student learning. These reports should be compared with, and supported by, information obtained from other sources such as student focus groups, self-reflections and peer reviews. Subject Coordinators are asked to document their reflections (including identified actions to maintain and enhance subject quality) in the Subject Reflection Database on their Faculty Quality Assurance (QA) Moodle Site.

See the Evaluation of Learning and Teaching website for further information.

Closing the feedback loop

Let your students know what changes you make to the subject, in response to your reflections and feedback (including from the SEBS survey) in the next iteration of the Subject Outline.

Reliability Assessment Score (RAS)

The RAS gives you an indication of the reliability of the data reflecting accurately the views of the student cohort. Results will be classified as insufficient, sufficient or good. Where scores are considered insufficient we encourage you to review the statistical information with caution and focus instead on the free text comments.

With 11 responses from a survey population of 73, the data presented in this report is considered to be Insufficient
Number of responses needed to be considered sufficient: 16
Number of responses needed to be considered good: 38

Results Summary

Note: The session average score includes all surveys completed across UOW for the current session

Qualitative comments

11. What were the best aspects of this subject and what changes would you suggest for this subject?

Comment
lecturers were hard to understand. moodle site was hard to navigate, a lot of extra stuff in random places, not well organised.
I felt like the final exam had a high percentage weight dedicated to Cryo EM, maybe could shift the balance more over the whole subject
The subject was very poorly organised, from not knowing details for the mid session to how the midsession was ran (the lecturers not knowing that it had a password or what the password is, having an exam question from a topic that had not been covered) and the feedback for the exam took longer than the UOW guidelines state.
The subject provided lots of real world examples, but the constant switching of professors left it a bit disorganized at times as what material we had covered seemed unknown.
5:30 PM lecture times are terrible. There was some repetition of content between different sections and sometimes felt out of place. Practical's were interesting.
Very interesting content material, and the lecturers are proficient and active in the fields they cover. The organisation of the mid–semester exam and some of the results was underwhelming.
I enjoyed the computer labs. I know that the timetabling can't really be controlled but I would suggest not having the mid–session quiz in the evening straight after labs.
the best bit was the first time real experiment project and how it was so relevant to what we were learning with course outcomes.
I enjoyed getting to learn to use the software needed for biochemical investigations, but the assessment tasks could have been spaced out a bit more – all of the assessments outside of the final exam were clumped into the first 9 weeks
